UnitCall An efficient calling system That makes sense

Often, a dentist sits alone with a patient and needs quick assistance from a nurse or clinical assistant.

You may not be able to leave the patient alone to call for help, and this is where a call button system is brilliant and effective.

With a single press of a call button, a discreet signal is sent to the assistant, who can see from which room the call is being made or who is calling. The receiver is an elegant watch that the assistant wears on their arm or belt.

The call button can also be used at reception, eliminating the need for constant staffing in that area. When patients arrive, they can call for assistance at the push of a button.

The system not only improves efficiency and saves time for the clinic staff but also enhances security for both patients and staff.
